Command and Control of Incident Operations (CCIO) is an intensive, six-day educational opportunity designed specifically for volunteer and small-department fire service officers. The course is part of the Volunteer Incentive Program (VIP).

National Fire Academy (NFA) courses can be delivered online, at the NFA campus in Maryland, and all throughout the nation in cooperation with state and local fire training organizations and local colleges and universities. In this course, students will study the Incident Command System and proper fire command techniques for control and extinguishment of fires ranging from small residential structures to multi-occupancy and commercial complexes. Topics include:

- incident decision-making methods;
- interagency cooperation and mutual aid;
- pre-incident preparation;
- building construction and fire behavior;
- engine and truck operations;
- incident size-up and problem identification;
- operational strategy and tactics;
- scene management and strategic command

During this course, students will participate in a series of simulations of emergency incidents. Members of the class assume roles, assess different types of emergency situations, and make command decisions under realistic incident conditions. The simulations are a critical component of this training experience. They give students an opportunity to apply the knowledge and practice the skills learned in the classroom in a safe and supportive environment, as well as reinforcing the lessons learned and helping students make the transition from the classroom to the incident scene.

Command & Control Registration Form

May 20-25, 2019 | 8am-5pm | EMCC Public Safety Training Building, 354 Hogan Road, Bangor ME 04401

This course is designed to enhance fire service organizational and decision-making skills necessary for command and control of emergency incidents of various sizes, types and complexities. The primary target audience is persons from smaller departments (volunteer, combination or paid) who may find themselves in positions of command at emergency incidents. Secondary audience members who also may benefit from the training include persons serving as fire officers and other fire fighters.

Participants in this course will:

- Apply the Incident Command System (ICS) at emergency incident simulations;
- Determine strategies & identify appropriate tactical solutions for variety of incident types;
- Use pre-incident information in incident scene decision-making, and manage incident operations to maximize personnel and scene safety.

In addition to firefighting, the course takes an all-hazard/all-risk approach to training, addressing emergency medical care, rescue, hazardous materials (hazmat) operations and other threats to the community. A variety of instructional methods are used to present and reinforce training, including lecture, discussion, audiovisual aids and student activities. Special emphasis is placed on safety and the development of incident decision-making skills through the use of classroom simulations.
